...doing good to men’s souls while taking care of their bodies.

- Sir Christopher Codrington

We salute our forebears on whose backs this institution was built. We give thanks to God that their labour was not in vain, but their sons and daughters have benefited.

We salute those marked with the brand of slavery, may their life blood and toil never be forgotten.

The Rev. Michael A. Clarke, D.Min
Principal
Like most institutions we are facing some extremely challenging times, but the way ahead is filled with great opportunities.

We are committed to providing quality preparation for ministry for both ordained and lay members of the province and beyond.

With the onset of the modern technological offerings there are ways that we can make it more and more affordable for dioceses to finance the training of their members. We are still convinced that the seminary experience is essential for thorough ministerial formation and we continue to explore ways through which we can assist in ensuring that all the dioceses are able to have benefit from this as was the case in times past.

The Codrington Trust is implementing a development plan that will see in the near future the restoration and preservation of the College’s heritage value and the flow of substantial returns toward enriching its programmes. However, for the time being, we are still faced with making it possible for the College to be sustained.

Recently funds were secured to put in place the necessary equipment to render Distance Learning a real option for Theological Education across the Province of the West Indies. This should be fully operational by September 2016. The Diploma course will be the first program to utilize this facility.

Mindful of the 275th anniversary in September 2020 a campaign is being launched to secure an Endowment Fund for the College. To this end alumni and friends are asked to make an annual contribution over the next 4 years of at least $300.00. Pledges of $300.00 or multiples of the same are being asked for at this time. Our target is $2,020,000.00.
